Widely Attended Gathering (WAG) Information

To help determine if this event qualifies as a WAG and beneficial for your agency to attend, we have provided answers to some frequently asked questions.

1. How many attendees are anticipated and from which markets?

More than 2,000 invitations will be distributed to agencies from the DoD, Federal Government, private industry, non-profit organizations, and the media. We anticipate between 700-1000 attendees with roughly 50% from the Department of Defense, federal, state and local government agencies, 47% from private industry and 3% from other groups, such as non-profit organizations and media outlets.

2. Will this event help further agency programs and operations?

Yes. The purpose of ExperienceFR is to showcase the latest industry-leading technology and solutions available to end users, program managers and procurement specialists. This experience is designed to help these decision makers meet their operational requirements efficiently and cost-effectively. This event provides all attendees quality training and education in both structured classroom environments and open area training demonstrations. These classroom and hands-on learning experiences focus on topics related to technology, procurement, and response tactics. All training courses are instructed by experienced Subject Matter Experts from military and local government agencies.

3. Will attendees with similar interests from other markets be represented?

Yes. ExperienceFR represents a broad range of industry and Government-specific exhibits, training courses and demonstrations related to operational equipment, contracts, sustainment, and response tactics. With exhibits from leading manufacturers, attendees will get a first hand look at the latest technology to address warfighter capabilities and requirements. Solution categories range from CBRN, C4ISR, MRO and Expeditionary / Mobility operations, to unmanned systems technology and special missions such as Explosive Ordnance Disposal (EOD). Subject matter experts from each market will be on-hand to answer questions and to highlight available solutions to support your mission requirements.

4. Is a more detailed agenda available?

Yes. A detailed agenda is available online at <http://www.experiencefr.com>
